Subject matter of the application

All the information concerning the facts, complaints and compliance with the requirements of exhaustion of domestic remedies and the six-month time-limit laid down in Article 35 §-1 of the Convention must be set out in this part of the application form (sections E., F. and G.) (Rule 47 § 2 (a)). The applicant may supplement this information by appending further details to the application form. Such additional explanations must not exceed 20 pages (Rule 47 § 2 (b)); this page limit does not include copies of accompanying documents and decisions.

E. Statement of the facts

Privacy International is a UK registered charity that plays an important 'watchdog' role, especially in relation to the surveillance and other privacy issues arising from the work of the Government Communications Headquarters (GCHQ), an intelligence service of the United Kingdom Government.

On 4 March 2014, Privacy International requested information from GCHQ in a legitimate effort to gather information of public interest with the intention of, inter alia, imparting that information to the public and contributing to public debate.

On 4 March 2014, GCHQ refused to provide the requested information as it was not required to do so. It is excluded from the regime of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 (FOIA). A FOIA request to any other public authority supplied with the requested information by GCHQ also could not have led to its disclosure. The public authority would have been absolutely prevented by the terms of FOIA from disclosing it to Privacy International, irrespective of the content of the requested information. There is no other practicable mechanism for Privacy International to obtain the requested information.

The refusal of Privacy International's request for information was as a result of a legislative scheme that made no provision for the disclosure of such information. There was with no consideration by GCHQ as to whether the refusal was necessary in a democratic society.

These facts are fully set out in an attached document. See attached 'Submissions of the Applicant to Accompany their Application Form', section titled "STATEMENT OF THE FACTS [BOX E]."

[The main body of the page is a large, empty rectangular box with a thin border, intended for the applicant to provide a detailed statement of facts. The box is currently blank, with only the number '36.' at the top left corner.]

F. Statement of alleged violation(s) of the Convention and/or Protocols and relevant arguments

37. Article invoked
Article 10(1)

Article 13

Explanation

In the circumstances, there was an interference with the Privacy International's freedom to receive information that was not necessary in a democratic society.

There is no effective domestic remedy capable of dealing with the substance of the alleged violation of Privacy International's rights, nor is appropriate relief available.

The alleged violations of the convention and relevant arguments are fully set out in an attached document. See attached 'Submissions of the Applicant to Accompany their Application Form', section titled "STATEMENT OF ALLEGED VIOLATIONS OF THE CONVENTION AND RELEVANT ARGUMENTS" [Box F].

G. For each complaint, please confirm that you have used the available effective remedies in the country concerned, including appeals, and also indicate the date when the final decision at domestic level was delivered and received, to show that you have complied with the six-month time-limit.
